

Why Windows Containers Are Less Attractive Than Linux Containers

By Roy Schestowitz

Created 25/05/2019 - 7:32am

Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Saturday 25th of May 2019 07:32:28 AM Filed under Linux [1] Server [2]

The fact that you can run Docker containers on Windows as well as Linux is amazing. Yet, I sometimes struggle to see a clear use case for Windows containers. Compared to Linux containers, there are fewer obvious reasons to run containers on Windows.

I know that's a somewhat controversial statement, so let me walk through the various reasons why Windows containers are much less attractive than Linux containers.

[3]

Also: Streamlining Software Development and Distribution with Containers [4] [Ed: Paid-for SPAM from EMC.

?Buying the news?? the new ?biz model?? Companies literally buying not only the narratives but also the space and the staff?]

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/124229>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/63>

[2] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/147>

[3] <https://containerjournal.com/2019/05/24/why-windows-containers-are-less-attractive-than-linux-containers/>

[4] <https://www.cio.com/article/3397780/streamlining-software-development-and-distribution-with-containers.html>