

2020 and the minority spreading hate and fake news

By Roy Schestowitz

Created 22/02/2020 - 4:41pm

Submitted by Roy Schestowitz on Saturday 22nd of February 2020 04:41:05 PM Filed under OS [1]

At the age of 12, as my computer knowledge was notably increasing, I remember I've eventually been chocked to read something totally wrong in a magazine. Someone wrote something that was factually false.

This made me realize that until this date, I used to think that everything that was written in a book or a magazine was true. Just because it was written.

I'm taking 10 minutes to write this post, because I'm regularly asked to justify myself by some people who are concerned about what they are reading about /e/ on a website that's been around for a little more than 1 year. And I prefer spending my time on /e/ development instead of answering about this.

This website has found a mission to warn /e/ users about how bad I am, and how bad the /e/ project is. In short, that what we are doing is just evil, has no value, shouldn't exist. And that, of course, people should never, ever, use /e/.

This little website is run by a tiny group of haters, who have started to be very active in /e/ discussion groups on Telegram during summer 2018. The kind of guys who shout loud, answer and argue with everyone who disagrees with their certitudes. Their excess and their systematically negative attitude lead us to ban them permanently from our groups after several warnings.

[2]

OS

Source URL: <http://www.tuxmachines.org/node/134364>

Links:

[1] <http://www.tuxmachines.org/taxonomy/term/37>

[2] <https://www.indidea.org/gael/blog/2020-and-the-minority-spreading-hate-and-fake-news/>