The US Army has delayed a massive rollout of Microsoft's HoloLens virtual reality headsets.

The US Supreme Court has brushed off Oracle's complaint that it wasn't awarded the Pentagon's $10bn winner-takes-all Joint Enterprise Defense Infrastructure (JEDI) cloud contract.

Still, Big Red refused to give up. It appealed its case all the way to the Supreme Court. The US government told the justices the case ought to be rejected given that Oracle wouldn't have won the contract anyway. The ongoing legal spats, however, were made pointless when the Pentagon scrapped JEDI in July.

Despite this, Oracle still thought the case was worth pursuing considering the DoD had replaced the cloud project with the new 'Joint Warfighter Cloud Capability (JWCC)' contract. The JWCC deal has been limited to AWS and Microsoft only. We note that Oracle says it does more than $28bn a year in cloud revenues.
